- Construction: 1/2" Polyethylene
- Color: Stripe Hog® Safety Yellow

ST2000 Water Trailer

The ST2000 is equipped with a plastic tank that holds a bag/bladder. The bag bladder holds 2000 gallons (7570.8 liters) of fresh water, which allows the 750 gallon (2839 liter) water/debris tank to be converted into a 750 gallon (2839 liter) debris storage tank. During operation the water is reduced from the bladder tank and the dirty water is then in turn pumped from the debris tank into the plastic tank that was before holding the bladder. This eliminates the need to take on fresh water or dispose of dirty water for about five hours. As a result your operating time is increased and your production reaches optimum levels.

Our Stripe Hog units have proven their value to hundreds of customers in 35 countries around the world. I know that when the machines are placed in the hands of competent trained operators, they will produce a nice profit for their owners and will do so while causing minimal impact to the surface. So often I've discovered operators utilizing the machine at a level well below its potential. That's why I've created the Formula For Success program. If we ensure productivity and minimal cost as well as the integrity of the pavement surface, we will protect our mutual vested interest in Waterblasting as the most effective tool on the planet for this intended purpose. The Formula For Success program moves success from the probable column to the nearly unavoidable success column.

Company Profile

Waterblasting Technologies was founded in 1988 by its' current President & CEO, James P Crocker. It began as a small pressure cleaning company named Pressure Cleaning Services, Inc. serving primarily the residential community. After becoming a thriving and successful residential and commercial painting company in 1995, high pressure water jet pumps became a valued part of the business in removing paint and various coatings. The opportunity soon arose to use these high pressure water jet pumps to remove road markings. Mr. Crocker was fascinated with the speed at which the markings were removed and the jets ability to remove such tough materials without substantially damaging the road surface.

The original Stripe Hog® was developed in 1997 as the company sought to develop a machine that could semi-automatically perform the removal with near perfect and repeatable performance. The company built and rebuilt many machines to service the growing list of customers using its' stripe removal services. This stripping and rubber removal service company still exists and operates under the name Waterblasting.com. Although Waterblasting.com has successfully completed removal projects in more than 40 of the United States and many other countries around the world, we do our best to compete with our customers. Through rigorous research and development, the Stripe Hog® paint and rubber removal system has continued to evolve over the years. The speed at which the system was developed was drastically reduced because as a contractor using the machines every day the units had to reduce with real time results produced by every day continuous use. There became a growing number of contractors that thought the Stripe Hog® System would be a hot commodity if offered for sale. This brought a growing conviction that waterblasting in general had a great future in the runway cleaning and paint removal business and that the Stripe Hog® is by far the fastest and most economical solution in the industry. Acting on those convictions the "Stripe Hog" made its' debut at the annual AUSA convention in Phoenix, AZ in February of 2005 and received the Innovation of the Year Award. Now with many patents pending and numerous patents approved throughout various parts of the world, the Stripe Hog® (Stripe Bull) has been sold in more than 35 countries and is operating in an estimated 80 countries around the world. Some airports and contractors utilize their Paint and rubber removal systems in multiple countries within a given airport consortium.

As inspectors, engineers and DOT officials become exposed to these ultra-efficient and effective paint and rubber removal results with the least amount of negative impact to the surface, the waterblasting method continues to gain momentum as the preferred method for road and runway markings and runway rubber removal. Once an authority is convinced of the benefits of the method, we always hope we will have the chance to educate and invest in the awareness of this prospective customer's knowledge related to our machines as well as our 9 competitors throughout the world.

After every sale, our customer support and service system is immediately initiated for our customers. Being a contractor ourselves gives us a clear understanding of the urgent nature of our business. You can reach one of our technicians within 10 minutes 24/7 through our state of the art phone system. Customers can also access support online at striphegsupport.com where they can find online training videos, service bulletins and an online store to easily order parts complete with pictures, specify destination and speed of shipment all day every day. We have 9 languages represented in our customer support team including English, French, German, Spanish, Portuguese, Italian, Czech, Romanian and Polish. We look forward to adding more as our global footprint continues to expand. We built on back Chassis that are sourced within the country of destination in order to provide a single point of warranty and service throughout the life of the vehicle.

Our responsibility and unwavering commitment to our product and customers begins at the point of sale and shall have no end.
